

Interprofessional Professionalism
Teacher's Seminar Breakout #3, #7

AACP Annual Meeting, Saturday, July 10, 2010, Seattle, WA

Jody Gandy, American Physical Therapy Association

Dana Hammer, University of Washington School of Pharmacy

At your table, discuss the questions below and on the back. Be prepared to share your most interesting responses with the large group in 20 minutes.

Describe interprofessional education or practice models that you are currently using, or that your institution is promoting to address professionalism or teamwork:

What has made these models successful?

What are the major challenges that would need to be resolved to advance interprofessional education or practice at your program or site?

Interprofessional Professionalism
Teacher's Seminar Breakout #3, #7

AACP Annual Meeting, Saturday, July 10, 2010, Seattle, WA

Jody Gandy, American Physical Therapy Association

Dana Hammer, University of Washington School of Pharmacy

What do you believe are other professions' perceptions about the interprofessional role of pharmacy in healthcare practice and education?

Where do you see the best "fit" for pharmacy in interprofessional education and practice?

What would be required to create an environment where interprofessional education and practice would be valued by and fostered within pharmacy?