- “Cultural Issues in the Clinical Setting, Parts A & B: ten “case studies,” (five on obstetrical themes, such as lesbian parents; Hmong birth practices; gender and acculturation issues in Iranian immigrants; a Latina diabetic in labor; and a circumcised Somali woman in labor). Other issues covered are: problems in using family interpreters; Southeast Asian refugee psychosomatic issues; sickle cell problems with a black teenager in the E.R; conflicting cultural values between parents and physicians in a pediatric asthma case, problems with a digital rectal exam with a black male patient; and a gay teen-ager coming out to his family practice physician.

- “Multicultural Health Series, Part I (Four videos with accompanying materials: “changes in an elderly patient's care provider; an elderly Navajo faces surgery; an Orthodox Jewish couple has a Saturday baby; and a pediatrician learns to use telephonic interpreting. “Changes” about an elderly man and his new South Asian doctor, won the World Gold Medal as best in its category at the New York International Film and Video Festival in 2004.”

- “ Multicultural Health Series, Part II (Six videos and accompanying materials: “an American physician mediates issues around the death of a young Malaysian Chinese girl with her family; a physician assistant confronts the family abuse of a South Asian woman; a middle-class white male physician and a working-class male heart attack patient experience communication difficulties; a medical team works through compliance and medication issues with Afghan refugees; a doctor finds that his semi-literate but well-intentioned Columbian immigrant patient and her husband are using a plethora of South American drugs in addition to their prescribed medications; and a physician assistant helps his pregnant Latina patient find a way to deal with her STD re-infection problem.”
