AACP New Member Roadmap

Welcome!

Get Connected

- Login and complete your membership profile!
- Join AACP Sections and Special Interest Groups (SIGs) that align with your interests
- Join discussions on AACP Connect—and make sure you are in all relevant member communities
- Engage with colleagues in the Council of Faculties or the Council of Deans.

What are AACP Sections and SIGs?

AACP Sections are member groups based on academic disciplines.

AACP Special Interest Groups (SIGs) are member groups based on interests that cut across the academic disciplines.

Sections and SIGs develop meeting programming, exchange ideas pertinent to effective teaching methods, draft policies and best practices, and much more!

What are AACP Councils?

Members can join one of two Councils: The Council of Faculties or the Council of Deans, which represent and support the administrators, faculty, and professional staff at member institutions. Each Council provides input on programming at regional or national meetings, manages committees responsible for the development of reports and/or recommendations, and oversees robust online communities via AACP Connect.

Explore and Learn

- Read AJPE and submit an article for publication
- Attend an upcoming Webinar
- View upcoming AACP Events
- Review AACP's Institutional Research and Graduate Affairs resources and programs
- Visit AACP Learn for CE and professional development

Participate and Engage

- Become more engaged in your Section or SIG by volunteering or joining a Section/SIG committee
- Submit an abstract for the AACP Annual Meeting
- Consider AACP leadership and education programs, including the Academic Leadership Fellows Program and the Mid-Career Recharge Program

Make an Impact

- Attend your Section or SIG virtual business meeting in June
- Volunteer to participate on an AACP Standing Committee or Task Force
- Attend the AACP Annual Meeting in July and connect face to face with colleagues you have interacted with all year via AACP Connect.

www.aacp.org

American Association of Colleges of Pharmacy AACP

Pharmacists Help People Live Healthier, Better Lives.