This page contains a section titled "Passport to Health: Evaluating a comprehensive service-based health fair targeting Medicare beneficiaries". It discusses the objectives, methods, results, conclusions, and references of a study involving student pharmacists providing medication therapy management services. The page covers the identification and review of medication-related problems (MRPs) with patients, performing medication therapy management (MTM) services, and assessing other health screenings/services, such as blood pressure, cholesterol, diabetes, and vision checks. The study evaluated the impact of these services on patient confidence, knowledge, and health outcomes. The page includes figures, tables, and references to support the findings.
